

Pennsylvania Association for Rational Sexual Offense Laws
A Pennsylvania Safe and Just for All

PARSOL's Board of Director's Bios

Theresa Robertson, Ph.D.

Executive Director

Dr. Robertson has been involved in advocating for rational sexual offense laws since 2016. She has been active at both national and state levels and is a founding member of PARSOL. Dr. Robertson is a member of the Pennsylvania Reentry Council (PARC) and co-chair of the PARC sub-committee on those who have sexually offended. She has engaged in research related to addressing psychological consequences of public registration and has presented these results nationally and internationally. Dr. Robertson is passionate about working toward solutions that both prevent sexual abuse and honors the inherent worth and dignity of all human beings.

Randall Hayes, B.S.

Legislative Committee Chair,
Director of Legislative Affairs

Randall Hayes' civic involvement began in 2015 and has included advocacy for animal rights, pro-democracy initiatives, and criminal justice reform. As legislative chair, Randall has expanded PARSOL's efforts at lobbying in the Capitol and tracks laws that effect Pennsylvania's approach to sexual offenses. He sees the turmoil resulting from Court challenges to PA's Registry as an opportunity to educate elected officials on ways we can be more effective at prevention of sexual crimes before they occur. Randall has a B.S. degree in Psychology from Penn State where he focused on affect and emotion. He holds a degree in Biotechnology from Harrisburg University where he studied DNA and cell culture.
